ZR-3 REACHES U. S. COAST

INDIANA TORN TOPSY TURVY BY ISSUE ON KLAN

Parties Split; Folly to Forecast Vote.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—By that rasping sound which will be heard in the nation Nov. 4 you will know that the Hoosiers are "crackling" the ticket as never before and recording thereby a variety of feelings too deep for utterance. The political slaughter on that day, it is going to be frightful to contemplate, and which party, faction, or individuals are likely to be the chief victims it would be foolhardy to attempt to predict with certainty. My judgment is that Coolidge and Davis will carry Indiana with its own electoral votes, though by a plurality far short of the 135,000 margin which the state gave to Harding in 1920. Upwards of 50,000 is what the prospective Coolidge plurality now appears.

"Fighting Chance for Davis." The Democratic managers think Davis is steadily gaining ground in the state, but a "fighting chance" is the best they can say candidly of his prospects of beating Lincoln.

The La Follette leaders, likewise, concede the state to Coolidge. As matters now stand, Davis will run second and La Follette third. Putting Coolidge over is likely to be about the extent of the Republican accomplishment on election day. The governorship and most other state offices probably will go to the Democrats. They hope that Lincoln will win by a vote so large that the Republican state ticket will be in on the crest of the Coolidge wave.

Klan the Paramount Issue. The Ku Klux Klan is at the bottom of all the troubled Hoosier politics, of course. There are other considerations, amounting also to complicate the situation, as in other states. Radical Republicans and Democrats are supporting La Follette, and some conservative Democrats will vote for Coolidge to prevent the disposal of both La Follette and Charles Bryan as a future enemy. The tariff, government economy, and other issues are influencing voters, but the Klan is the one big, burning, paramount issue of the election in this state.

Ed Jackson, Republican candidate for governor, is backed by the Klan, while Dr. Carlton H. McCulloch, the Democratic candidate, is anti-Klan—and there you have the touchstone of the entire political contest in Indiana. How the Klan is going to vote on the governorship is the leading question everywhere and is affecting the chances of every other candidate for better or worse.

Union Parties, Families. The Klan issue has split both the labor and business factions and union families politically. The Klan, which dominates the Republican party, has the assistance of Democratic members in the effort to elect Jackson, while anti-Klan Republicans are working openly for Dr. McCulloch. Republican foes of the Klan to a considerable number will vote for Davis or La Follette, or not register at all in the national ticket in all or register their dissatisfaction with Lincoln's failure to denounce the coded order by name.

The largest troops of voters alienated from normal party affiliations by the Klan issue are the Negroes and the Jews. Republican leaders fear that more than 75 per cent of this vote is lost to the Republican state ticket and that 70 per cent of it is lost to Coolidge.

Keep Coolidge Out of It. An air of mystery and suspicion prevails among the politicians. The Klan and Klans and cynosopes with their giving of passwords and counter-words are invoking powerful secret influences for Jackson. Klan spies occupy high places in the McCulloch campaign, it is said, and anti-Klan workers are getting in their work in the Jackson management. Political leaders who have worked together for years find themselves suspecting each other.

The Coolidge campaign management independent of Jackson's, that the president may not be enriched with the Klan taint. In eleven counties the Democratic organization is pro-Davis and supporting Jackson. It has been necessary to create rump committees to handle McCulloch's campaign. In about as many counties, the business organizations are supporting McCulloch.

Senator Jim Watson's immediate following which is prominent in the Jackson management, has taken alarm at the prospect of the Klan to run Jackson for senate against Watson in 1925. With plot and counter-plot the situation becomes complicated.

INJUN SUMMER

(Copyright, 1912, by John T. McCulloch.)

[This famous cartoon first appeared in The Tribune in the autumn of 1907. It is republished in response to many requests.]

Yes, sunny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you? Well, that's when all the homelick Injuns come back to play. You know, a long time ago, long before yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here—thousands—millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Regular sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer clear store Injuns, not much. They was all around here—right here, where you're standin'. Don't be skeered—hain't none around here now, no more. They been gone this many a year. They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.

But every year, long about now, they all come back, leetwys, their spirits do. They're here now. You can see 'em off across the fields. Look real hard. See that kind o' bazy, misty look out yonder? Well, them's Injuns—Injuns a-spirits marchin' along an' dancin' in the sunlight. That's what makes that kind o' haze that's everywhere—it's just the spirits of the Injuns all comin' back. They're all around us now. See o' yonder, see them tapeworm? They kind o' look like corn shocks from here, but them's Injun tents, sure as yer's a pot high. See 'em now? Sure, I knowed you would. Smell that smoky sort o' smell in the air? That's the campfires a-burnin' and their pipes a-goin'. Lots o' people say it's just leaves a-burnin', but it ain't. It's the campfires, an' the Injuns are hopin' round 'em 't beat the old Harry.

You jest come out here tonight when the moon is hangin' over the hill off yonder an' the harvest fields is all swimmin' in the moonlight, an' you can see the Injuns and the tapeworms as plain as kin be. You can, can't I knowed you would after a little while.

G. O. P. LEADS IN BREAKING POLL RECORDS

Democrats Fail to Keep Step.

Chicago broke all registration records yesterday, sending its total number of eligible voters to 1,068,169. This was accomplished by the enrollment of 499,443 men and women yesterday. With the 568,726 voters who registered on Oct. 8, the first day of registration in 1924, they made an army of 1,068,169 persons eligible to vote for President. This compares with the previous highest registration of 938,616, the number on the books before the new registration and with 864,443, the total new registration in 1922, the last year in which there was a new general registration.

Subject to Revision. The figure of 1,068,169 is subject to a slight revision, but it is not expected that more than a few thousand names will be dropped from the list. Previously unrecorded registrations have gone above the million mark only to be brought down by the elimination of voters who had moved from one ward to another. There have been no removals since the registration of Oct. 4 and the only names that will be struck from the list are those of persons who receive some notice because their registration is supposed to be fraudulent and fail to answer them and show cause why they should be permitted to vote.

Registration Is Significant. Politically the registration was significant. The bulk of the increase was in the big Republican residence wards. The biggest increase in registration was in the Forty-ninth ward—the Rogers Park one—which was carved out of the old Twenty-fifth. The total registration for the presidential election in this ward is 34,689 as compared with a registration of 24,325 previously. The new registration gave the Forty-ninth the greatest number of voters in the city.

Republican strongholds such as the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, and Forty-eighth also showed big increases.

Democrats Fall Off. The Democratic wards, on the contrary, failed to make much of a showing. In fact, in some of the Democratic river wards there was an actual decrease in registration. Among these wards were the Twenty-sixth, Thirty-first, Thirty-second, and Thirty-third, all on the west side.

The small registration in these wards is as disappointing to the La Follette followers as to the Democrats, as the wards are populated largely with industrial workers, upon whom the La Follette managers rely.

The only Republican ward to show a falling off was the Twenty-seventh, where workers form an unusually large proportion of the population.

Registration by Wards. Following is the tabulation by wards of yesterday's registration, the total of ten days ago, and yesterday's combined and the totals of 1922's registration given for comparison:

Lincoln Sane at This Time, Jury Finding

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Geneva, Ill., Oct. 14.—Warren J. Lincoln, Aurora lawyer and Socialist, was found sane by a jury here tonight. He will, therefore, be tried for the murder of his wife and brother-in-law, Jan. 10, 1925, which he confessed. This Kane county jury, however, found only that Lincoln is sane now. They had no power to say whether Lincoln was sane or insane when he killed Mrs. Lincoln and her brother, Byron Shoup, dismembered their bodies, burned the limbs and torso and covered and encased the heads in concrete.

May Use Insanity Defense. Tonight's verdict does not preclude a defense for Lincoln that he was insane at the time of the commission of the crime. It affords the possibility of the next jury finding Lincoln on the theory he was insane when he murdered the two, but has since recovered his sanity.

This decision was what Lincoln—but not his counsel—wanted. He had objected to his lawyers' contention that he was insane.

He appeared pleased when the clerk read aloud the verdict. Yet he would make no comment.

"I have nothing to say for publication," he repeated twice, then was taken back to his cell.

Only Take One Ballot. The jurors were an hour and a half in reporting their finding, but they had only taken one ballot, they said. All agree that eccentric though Lincoln may be, he is mentally competent to be tried for the double murder.

State Attorney Thomas Shoup and his assistant, John Phillips, said the trial may not start for a month or so. They will then seek to have Lincoln hanged.

"I don't believe Lincoln's lawyers themselves thought him insane when they started these proceedings," Prosecutor Abbott said. "I think they were on a fishing expedition, trying to force us to disprove our evidence in advance, so they can combat it."

"They now have the testimony of our witnesses, but we didn't show them everything."

Insanity Evidence Barred. The state's attorney said that in the upcoming trial he would again oppose efforts to show an hereditary strain of insanity in the Lincoln family. Judge John K. Newhall, throughout this hearing, excluded testimony to the effect that Lincoln's mother was a Merriam and that there was much insanity in that lineage. One of Warren's brothers died in an insane asylum, another died of brain fever at the age of 4, and Warren himself had once been in a sanitarium and discharged as "improved but not cured," his attorneys, Harvey Gansel and N. J. Aldrich, proposed to prove, but Judge Newhall would not permit this.

They say now that unquestionably that testimony will be admissible in the murder trial.

Edict of State Fies. Gansel made a strong plea to the jury. He recited the testimony of the various witnesses whose opinions were that Lincoln was insane. He ridiculed the argument of the state that every move of Lincoln's since the murders was to "cover up" or because of conscience. He said that if Lincoln were bothered by remorse he would not have slept for four months in the room where he committed murder, with the heads of his victims buried below his bed.

If Lincoln were sane, he argued, his legal training would have prevented his voluntary recovery of the heads, as without them there would have been no corpse delict.

"Let another jury say whether this man shall be punished for the crimes he committed," State's Attorney Abbott said in ending his closing argument.

THE ONLY YOUNG MAN in the party was Hugh McAnisland. It was across his cradle that Peter McAnisland had been with his wife until the highest court in the country had pronounced the child his own. And now Hugh was back in his father's home with the man McAnisland had accused.

LOCATED OFF BOSTON EARLY THIS MORNING

Airship Fights Fog in Crossing Ocean.

BULLETIN.

New York, Oct. 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—Clear and strong signals from the ZR-3 were heard in New York at 3 o'clock this morning. The dirigible asked Bar Harbor for her bearings for fifteen minutes. She was believed to be seventy miles east of Boston.

BULLETIN.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 15.—The Boston navy yard said at 3 o'clock this morning that the ZR-3 was 120 miles off shore about opposite or south of Boston, according to the plots based upon radio compass bearings sent from the Bar Harbor naval station and the naval compass station at North Truro, Mass.

New York, Oct. 14.—(Special.)—The giant Zeppelin airship ZR-3 is due to end its long flight across the Atlantic ocean from Germany tomorrow morning, winding its way over New York City and settling down at Lakehurst, N. J., air field some time between 9 o'clock and noon. This was the consensus of naval officers tonight, based on the position of the dirigible as wirelessly for bearings out of a fog.

"Now off South Nova Scotia; everything well," was the message sent at 11:30 o'clock tonight from the dirigible to the air station at Bar Harbor, Me. Navy officials said they thought the ZR-3 at that time was clearing the fog that had wrapped her as she cleared down off the coast of Newfoundland.

All Engines Working. Two messages at 11 p. m. to Lakehurst, relayed by the Philadelphia navy yard, read:

"At the present rate of travel expect to reach Lakehurst tomorrow before noon."

"Proceeding with all engines at a cruising speed with a following breeze."

The first message was signed by Capt. Steele. The second bore no signature.

Turns Its Nose Northward. Steadily cutting down the miles between it and its goal, the ZR-3 suddenly shifted position this morning. It had been heading on a straight course from the Azores toward Bermuda, but ran into stiff head winds about 8 a. m. The dirigible had been averaging seventy-five knots up to then, but the elements promptly brought it down to about twenty-five.

WOMEN SELLING "OIL MILLIONS" LOCKED IN CELLS

Husband, Left as Nurse,
Appeals to Cops.

BY MAUREEN M'KERNAN.

Two dumpy little women in dowdy clothes were arrested yesterday afternoon as they sat in Harding square at 224 and Wentworth avenue.

They just had persuaded Joe Sosok, a laborer living at 214 West 24th place, to extend their note for $10,000, 000, which he held and which was long past due.

Joe was satisfied, for both women had agreed to pay him $15,000,000 next year if he would grant them the extension.

The Women of Millions.

The women are Mrs. Marie Kummer, 23, and her mother, Mrs. Anna Wachalter, 52, both living at 219 West 24th street, until moved to the Cottage Grove avenue police station and then to the Clark street "annex."

The younger woman's husband, John Kummer, who works in a pickle factory, had caused their arrest. He was mad because the women had left him at home with his two young daughters while they went to Washington, as they said, to see Walter Johnson pitch in the world series and to shake hands with the President. His final grievance that led him to complain to the police about his wife and mother-in-law was only the climax of a long list.

The mammoth oil fields the two women hold, he explained to police, were at the bottom of it all. Ever since Mary was 16 she and her mother had been selling shares in their great oil fields to all his friends, and in return for such insignificant sums as $250 and $1,500 they had given long time notes for $5,000,000, $10,000,000, and $15,000,000.

Husband Believes in Elches.

The oil fields, Kummer believed, were in Texas or California or Oklahoma. He said he believed because Mary and her mother went to see them sometimes. Then they came back with such tales of their wealth that John would rush out and get all his friends who had savings accounts to invest.

One friend, who didn't believe was taken to California, and there saw miles of oil wells Mary said were her's and her mother's—wells that were so rich the two women, if the man invested $500, could repay in five years with $5,000,000.

John Kummer assured police that the oil wells were real, because he had heard Mary tell about them so often, but he was getting tired of being left at home with the kids and working in a pickle factory, too.

As to his wife and mother-in-law, they went to Seattle to see the sights, went to Hawaii to visit, wait for New York to see the shows. When they went to Washington to the world series—that was too much.

See High Finance.

So the police arrived just as Mary and Anna were convincing Joe Sosok, a laborer, that he was better off if he accepted a $15,000,000 note instead of insisting on payment of the small $10,000,000 note he has held since 1920 and for which he had "loaned" the women $2,500.

Mary and Anna didn't want to talk. Anna would not, but sat in stony silence, a black silk handkerchief tied over her head, her eyes very bright. But a sulky grimace on her pudgy little features. Mary, the daughter, who is said by Police Captain James McMann to have obtained, perhaps, $100,000 from laborers in the last six years, explained that when 16 she had wanted to be rich like Hetty Green, about whom she read.

John Kummer, ejected from home by Mary because he fussed about not being taken to the world series, and the girl's father, John Wachalter, also a laborer, were arrested. The police, however, believe those men were dupes, like the "investors." The women will be questioned further today.

Pretty Bank Clerk Who

Took Poison to Recover

Miss Marguerite Harrison, 19 years old and pretty, who swallowed carbolic acid yesterday in a State street department store, will recover, physicians said last night. Miss Harrison, who is a clerk in the National Bank of the Republic, took the poison at the noon hour. Employees of the store notified the police, who took her to the county hospital. No reason for the act has been given the police.

JOB OUTLOOK IN CHICAGO BRIGHT; U. S. EXPERT FINDS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—Expansion in manufacturing activities and a gradual increase in employment in Chicago and Illinois are indicated in the monthly report of the United States employment service of the department of labor.

Regarding general conditions in Illinois the report says:

"An upward tendency in employment is apparent in all industries, and indications are that there will be little involuntary unemployment this winter."

Commenting on the situation in the Chicago industrial district, the report says:

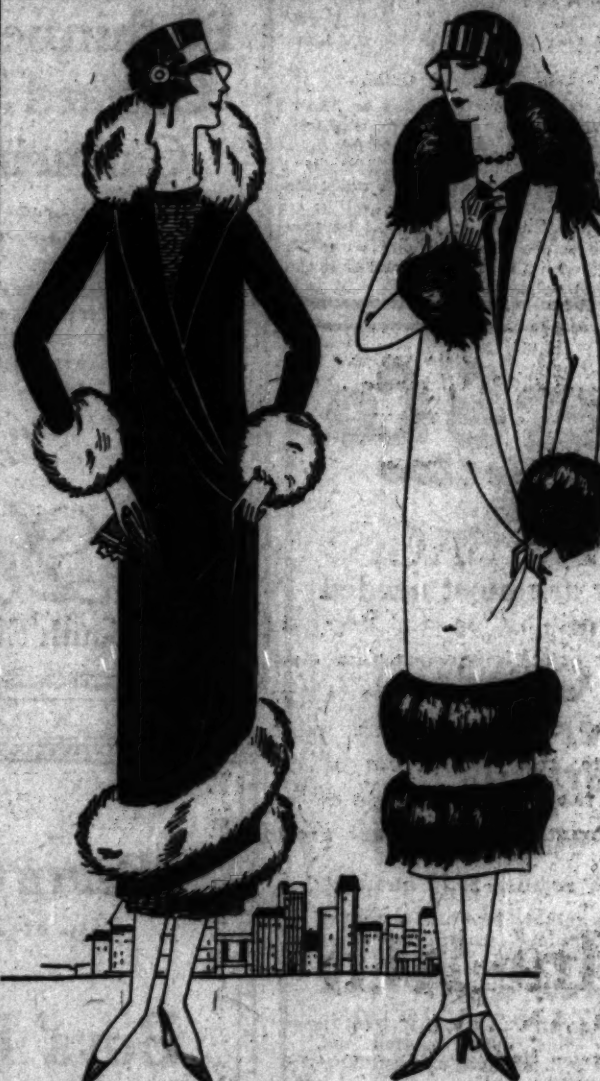

"Employment is on the upgrade. The outlook in the packing industry is brighter, and some plants have increased their forces."

A rush in demand for cement was reported by both producers and dealers, as contractors are anxious to finish their jobs before cold weather and are working their crews full time. A large program of street improvement work is to be started in October, which will afford employment to hundreds of workers."

MURDERER OF KAPPLER IDENTIFIED.

John Thompson, who is believed to have a police record, was identified yesterday as the murderer of Joseph Kappler, 45 years old, 1511 Ogden avenue. Kappler was shot and killed in an alley at the rear of his home several weeks ago. Thompson, who was roomed with Kappler, was arrested Monday night on a robbery charge.

Delivering manufactured goods—handling inbound shipments—interplant short hauls—these are a few of the strenuous tasks performed almost daily for years by the Leggett & Myers Tobacco Company's sixteen Pierce-Arrow trucks.

This company recently said, "First truck put in service in October 1912, and has been in constant service ever since. We feel safe in saying that this truck will operate efficiently and economically for a long time to come.... We operate this one 4 1/2 years without an overhaul.... Our second truck placed in operation in October, 1913, has a record equally as good."

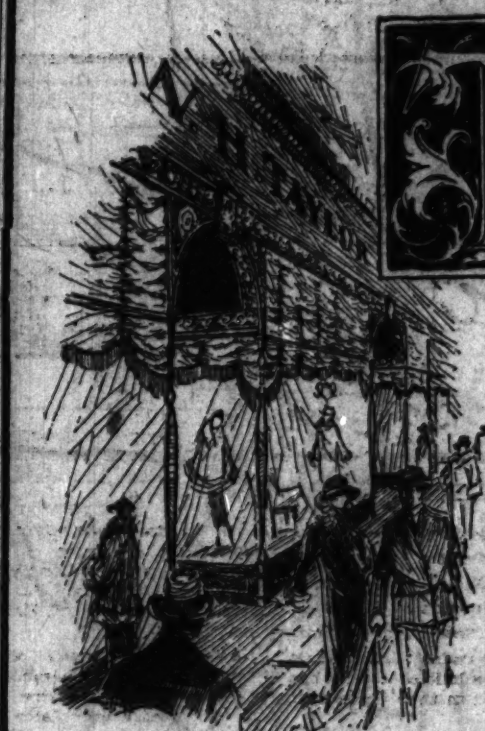

"The mileage of our two older Pierce-Arrow trucks averages 7,500 miles per annum. The average cost per ton during the past year on our trucks operating in St. Louis is extremely low."

WORRIES C

G. O. P. Senate

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—Financial difficulties are believed to have caused the suicide of Senator Brandegee. One of the members of the senate, who died today at his home in New London, Conn., was Senator Brandegee. He was 60 years old. The funeral will be held tomorrow in New London. Senator Brandegee's body was found in a bathroom on the second floor of his home. He was fully clothed and a rug was found under the head. There was a gas tube, which was turned on, and a set of keys turned on. The window was closed.

Physicians declared that Brandegee probably had been dead some time when found at 8:30 a. m. The district attorney, George W. Lunt, said that the act was probably committed by a note written on the senator's stationery. The note was found on the floor of the bathroom. It was written in ink and read: "Dear George: I love you and I love Rufus and am up in the bathroom. Floor, nearest 17th street, just over my bedroom. Lunt comes up there. See Good-by."

The Rufus and Emma were servants. Brandegee was a member of the House of Representatives and left no immediate relatives. Reports that financial difficulties were the cause of the suicide were confirmed by W. H. Weeks, a close former associate in the New York Times. He said that Brandegee was a man of means and that he had been in the Senate for many years. He said that Brandegee was a man of means and that he had been in the Senate for many years.

SEN. BRANDEGEE SUICIDE; MONEY WORRIES CAUSE

G. O. P. Senate Power
Ends Life by Gas.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—Financial difficulties and ill health are believed to have caused Senator Frank B. Brandegee (Rep., Conn.), 69, one of the most prominent members of the senate, to commit suicide today at his home in Washington. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon in New London, Conn., his former home and birthplace.

Senator Brandegee's body was found in an unused bathroom on the third floor of his house. The body lay fully clothed on a rug with two pillows under the head. It was connected to a gas tube, which was connected at the other end to a jet which was fully turned on. The window was tightly closed.

Suicide, Coroner's Verdict.
Physicians declared that the senator probably had been dead about five hours when found at 2:30 o'clock in the morning. The district coroner gave the cause of death as "suicide from inhalation of illuminating gas."

That the act was premeditated was indicated by a note written by the senator on a small stationery to his chauffeur, George W. Jones. The chauffeur and the senator's secretary, W. D. Lundy, found the note on the senator's bed.

It was written alternately in ink and blue pencil and read:
"Dear George: I enclose $100 for you and $100 for Rufus and Emma. I am up in the bathroom, on the top floor, nearest 11th street, the room directly over my bedroom. If you and Lundy come up there, beware the gas. Good-by."

The Rufus and Emma referred to were servants.

Money Was Cause, Says Weeks.
Senator Brandegee was unmarried and left no immediate relatives.

Reports that financial difficulties probably were the chief cause of the suicide were confirmed by Secretary of War Weeks, a close friend and former associate in the senate. Secretary Weeks in a statement issued in New York said that he knew that "the reason for taking this rash step is due to personal financial troubles resulting from investments in real estate." Secretary Weeks said that he was entirely familiar with Senator Brandegee's personal business affairs.

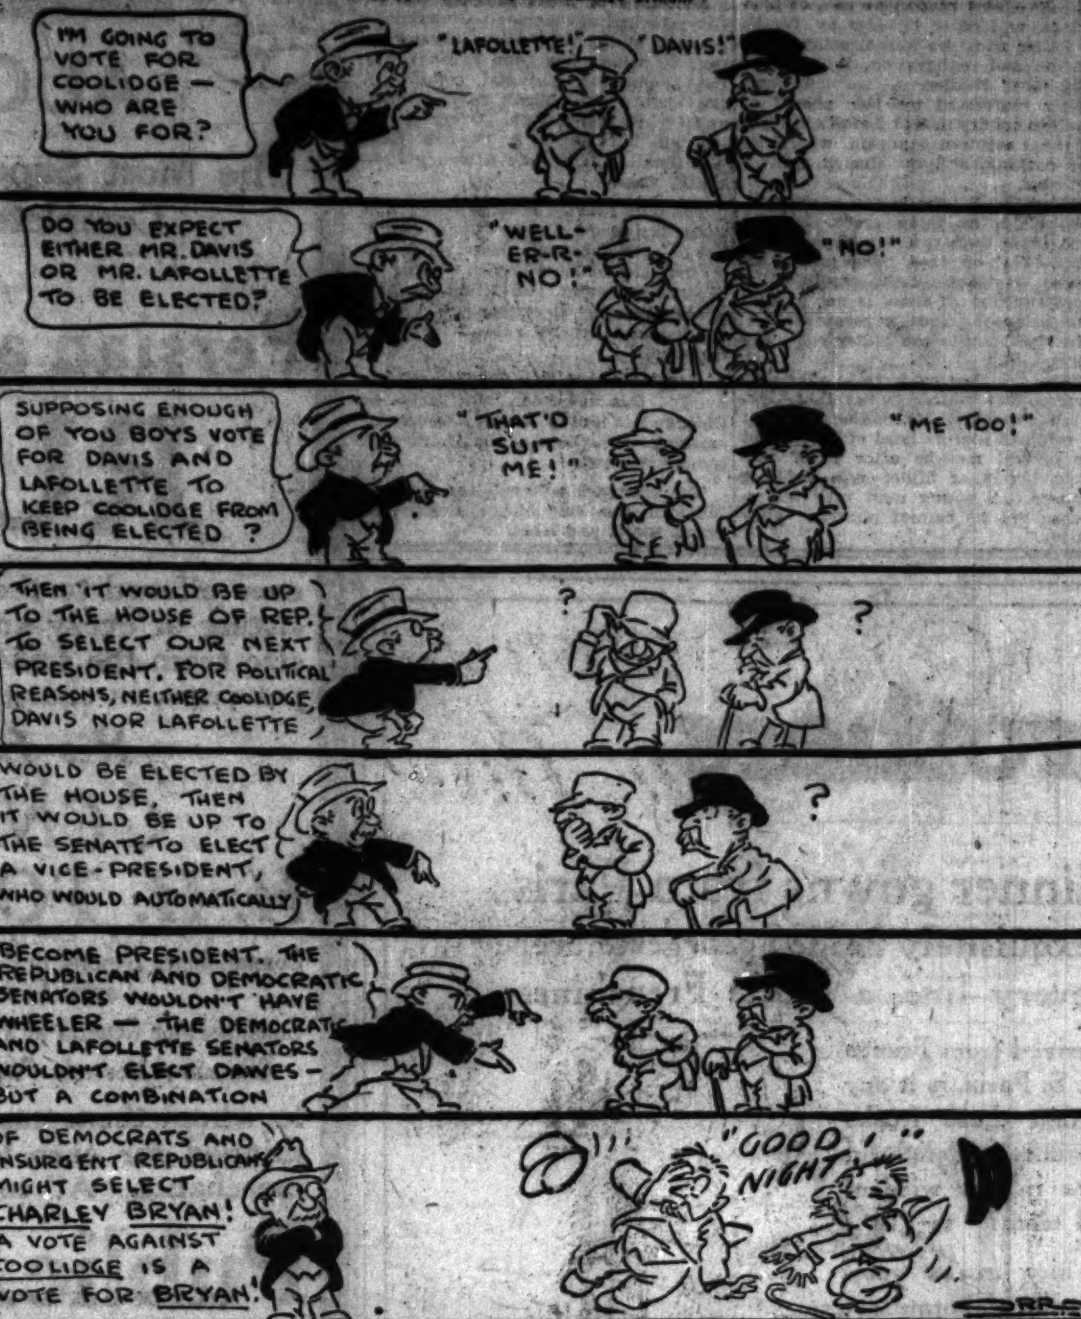

Senator Brandegee once was a comparatively rich man, according to his friends, but had suffered heavy losses in recent years. He was a lawyer by profession but had devoted his attention more to real estate investments.

President Coolidge sent a telegram of condolence to Carl M. G. Zellinski, depot quartermaster at Atlanta, Ga., brother-in-law of Brandegee, and said to be his only living relative, as follows:

"The loss of Senator Brandegee is a deep grief to all of us who have been associated with him. He has been one of the active and energetic leaders of the senate for years and one of the prominent men of Connecticut for a long time. He had a high appreciation of the requirements of public service. He was a faithful friend and a most industrious and painstaking legislator. I wish to express to you my sincerest sympathy."

Senator Brandegee was one of the conspicuous Republicans in the senate. He was chairman of the committee on Judiciary and one of the Republican leaders in the committee on foreign relations. As an "irreconcilable" he figured prominently in the fight against the peace treaty and in the effort to keep the Republican party from support of the league of nations.

His death will place Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho) in line for the chairmanship of the important committee on Judiciary.

Senator Brandegee was first elected to the senate in 1905 and thus had served for more than sixteen years. He was elected to the lower house of congress in 1902 and served there until elected to the senate.

He was born in New London, Conn., July 8, 1854, was graduated from Yale in 1885, and was admitted to the bar in 1888. He served in the Connecticut legislature.

Special Election Necessary.
Frank E. Brandegee's successor in the U. S. senate will not be appointed by Gov. C. A. Templeton, nor will he be elected at the presidential election, Nov. 4. The Connecticut law provides for a special election in the event of a vacancy, with nominations filed at least eighteen days before.

J. Henry Rossback, national committeeman and chairman of the Republican state committee, looks tonight at a contender for the place. On the Democratic side, several candidates present themselves. National Committeeman Homer S. Cummings of Stamford, former Congressman Augustine Lonergan of Hartford, and Thomas J. Spillay of Hartford, are possibilities.

News of the suicide shocked his townspeople in New London. It was well known that Senator Brandegee had long been a speculator in real estate, both here and in Washington, but he was rated in the millionaire class.

BRITAIN WARNS TURKEY TO END "TOMFOOLERY"

BY JOHN STEELE

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Speaking at a Mansion house dinner tonight, J. R. Thomas, colonial secretary, mentioned the decision of the government to permit the reference of the question of the status quo of the disputed territory at Mosul to the council of the league of nations. He added a blunt warning that in the meantime, although there was a general election in the country, no British government, Labor or otherwise, was going to stand for any tomfoolery from the Turk or anybody else or to permit the British nation's prestige or authority to suffer in the slightest degree.

Admitting frankly that what he said was not intended for the ears of his audience but for "the foreigner," Mr. Thomas said: "I want to make it clear to the foreigner and to the world that, in the defense, maintenance, and preservation of its rights, privileges, and obligations of this empire, no general election, no party differences will allow those who are charged with responsibility for this government to be unmindful of their obligations."

"Events have occurred which are very disturbing to his majesty's government. I don't know whether the political situation itself is responsible for the incidents, but if they were I only hope that the reference I have now made, not only on behalf of the people of the government but on behalf of the people of this country, will not be misunderstood."

Mr. Thomas said every possible measure would be taken to avert war, but at the same time the honor and prestige of the country were at stake and these could not be sacrificed.

MR. FORD SAYS HE WILL GIVE UP MUSCLE SHOALS.
Henry Ford says he is done with Muscle Shoals. He says he made the best bid he could, has seen politics kick it about for several years and has abandoned all interest in the development. He may think he has, but we doubt it. There has been too much perturbation in the Ford proposal for this water power and too much of the most powerful influence in the country behind it to permit any idea that the last has been heard of it.

Mr. Ford's complaint against politics is not well grounded. A group of die hards on the senate agricultural committee, headed by Senator Norris, did obstruct and stop the Ford plan, but he has had a majority in the house and might have had one in the senate if Norris had given way. Politics has been for him, and it has been by a narrow shave several times that he was prevented from getting the water power on his own terms.

They were terms which could not have been proposed to congress by any other man of wealth in the United States or by any corporation well known to the country. If the proposal had borne the name of Morgan it would have raised a storm which would have blown off its supporters' ears.

He asked for an abrogation of the water power act, for a grant contrary to the recognized principle of public good, for a 100 year or interminable lease, and for a free hand in the control and use of national resources for an insupportable return to the government and a dubious benefit to agriculture in the production of fertilizer. The potency of Mr. Ford's political charm nearly put it over. We'll believe that he has lost interest in it when some other disposition has been made of it.

Keeping Ford out of it when he will not make a fair deal is not developing Muscle Shoals. It prevents a bad development, but a negative result is not the accomplishment required. It seems to us that the government should continue the development. It has a vast capital in the works now. Mr. Ford demanded completion before he would accept a hundred year lease. When the government has the resource developed it can make use of the power under fair and advantageous leases which will conserve the public equity and release the power. The water power act contemplates fifty year leases, sufficient to protect the private operating agency and adequate for public control of the title.

Mr. Ford wanted a sell-out.

ANATOLE FRANCE.
Anatole France did some people of many nations the good of laughing about the eyebrows. Most people who have tried to reconcile their ideas of what life should be with their experience with it have felt that somehow there was a breakdown of illusion. The two borders touched a little. What they were and what they wanted to be were so far apart.

There are egocentric nations which find their reflection either in the soup pot or in the pool of Narcissus. Esau was one. Narcissus the other. But that does not go for other people. Their perplexities may end in a cathedral or begin in a laboratory.

It is an out for many people to take the inconsistencies of their life with a gleam of humor. It is a bridge which gets them over. Anatole France was the bridge. Below the eyebrows was a domain of contention, but above it a serenity. Man had not become a creature of searching inequities but was wholly dominated by what happened inside himself underneath his nose. He could be of two parts, one yielding to all the impulses which started in his traditions and appetites and the one completely understanding this and keeping out of the ditch.

If the laugh started at the eyebrows and went up you had the whole situation morally in command. The mind observant of all the human errandies still remained the mind and the most important thing, aside from illusion, which the human race had.

Sensible people may take the aspect of the cathedral and still the aspect of laughter. They are not inconsistent. Man may know both his spirituality and his physical limitations.

France himself was inconsistent. Old age is a destroyer of the mind. He laughed at the French revolution in the "Gods Are Ashes." In that the effort of humans to free themselves was only a confusion of their bondage to the elemental impulses which get them food and shelter and progeny. In the height of the revolution love songs beat the sales of republican literature. And yet in his old age France was a believer in the dogma that you could do exactly what he had portrayed the French revolution could not do. The man who sat on the tribunal of justice disappeared, but the boy who walked with a girl in the boulevard prevailed. Then he forgot his wisdom and believed in the mechanical or chemical change of the world, but at that there is little of his writings and the works on the shelves in many translations still say that life considered above the eyebrows is good.

EXAMINE MOTORISTS.
Examination for motorists is only common sense. With 530 deaths in Cook county in 1924 due to motor accidents it is clear that common sense is needed. The examination should be physical and mental. New York began last April to license motorists. Massachusetts is doing it with success.

Last year the Chicago Motor club and other lobbyists prevented adequate laws for safety from passing the Illinois legislature. A licensing bill was blocked in the house judiciary committee by lobbyists more interested in protecting motorists as a class than in reducing the death rate. To the next session of the legislature a similar bill, worked out by Coroner Wolff, will be presented. Howard P. Castle, chairman of the house judiciary committee, has endorsed the bill. Mayor Dever, Chief Collins and others support it. It is hoped that it will pass.

THE DON IS SICK.
Mr. Vicente Blasco Ibañez, the Spanish novelist, has taken to the ramparts in a fashion which suggests Victor Hugo. Furthermore, as in the case of Mr. Hugo, the ramparts are in Paris, but in the case of Mr. Ibañez the enemy is in Spain.

Any intelligent Spanish patriot would be beside himself in looking over the condition of his country. A military government which gets results may be a good or bad thing, but one which gets licked is a total loss. All the Spanish have been doing for years in the North African mountains has been by defeat to supply the Rif with arms to defeat the next draft of perplexed recruits.

When a military dictatorship is not even good at its own game against people who have to smuggle arms or win them on the battlefield its number is zero. Spain is enduring a senseless punishment, interpreted in medievalism at home and military suffering across the straits for some mountain ranges for which a Spanish onion grower would not give a peck of his produce. Spain sits in the council of the league of nations and has the sanction of that group of moral die whalers in an effort which wouldn't be worth while if it were successful and which as a finale is as entertaining as the bubonic plague.

Mr. Ibañez in his pronouncement shows the strain which such a situation can produce on an otherwise normal mind. He is afraid the example of Spanish militarism will spread to other parts of the world, particularly into parts of Latin America. He is a bit excited. If the Spanish example stimulates imitation the Latin Americans who yield to it are gluttons for punishment.

The king of Spain is a gentleman who would be found reasonable, well informed, and sensible over a glass of sherry. He has known for a number of years that any day may bring him the blue envelope which Ibañez says he must get and he does not know what to do about it. George V. might tell him to call in Señor Ramsay MacDonald and smoke a cigar with him, but Alfonso cannot do that. He is as helpless as Louis XVI, who only wanted to mend clocks and had his own pocket watch.

There are fresh years always ahead, but men are in the web of the dead one except when Napoleon comes along and knows just when to talk and when to shoot and has as little compunction in doing the one as the other. If Alfonso knew how to wear English ideas as well as English clothes Spain would be happier, but if the English were interested across the straits there'd be oil in the foothills and they'd get it without taking the Yorkshireman away from him.

WHEN ISHII EXPLAINS.
Ishii now explains that no offense was intended, that Japan's action in the league of nations was purely juridical, that Japan had to force the league to extend jurisdiction to domestic questions, anyhow, because that was the only way to save the peace system.

Vicente Ibañez may persuade leagueurs that Japan was preparing for peace in her thrust at American immigration laws. But America and the white peoples of the Pacific will see in it a diplomatic preparation for war. It is no accident that the league is the first weapon lifted for the next war. Japan has begun hostilities, in effect, on America. Her diplomatic offensive in the league can have no other interpretation.

When Ishii explains, something has happened. When Japan says she didn't mean it that way, America may be assured that one more useful parcel has been put away for use on the Tag. Japan's amendment is more or less shelved for the time being, but it is an accomplished fact nevertheless that can be revived in time of crisis to prove America the aggressor in a war waged by Japan for the right to immigrate.

Japan has erected a diplomatic framework for that war. Italy has helped her. France, perhaps in recognition of Japan's aid in saving her from sure German victory, also supports Japan against the United States. England hesitates. England in Europe leans toward Japan. England abroad is with America.

The league's power is like the feudal courts. It must ask its constituent barons for the means of enforcement. In the council now are Uruguay, Brazil, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Spain, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, and Belgium. In the outer assembly are numerous nations. Decisions of the council must be unanimous. The British fleet could not be used to coerce America on the immigration problem except by unanimous vote of the council. Such a vote would probably not be forthcoming. Japan can hardly expect it.

What Japan can expect is division in the British empire and her disintegration as an Asiatic power. Japan's diplomatic offensive prepares the way to make America the aggressor in the immigration war. The white peoples of the Pacific will surely come to definitive understanding when, or before, that war comes. But Japan may believe that her loss in that direction will be compensated by England's weakened hold on India and the far east.

OPEN WINDOW SCHOOLS.
School systems would abolish their truancy officers and spend the money on open window schools; they would come out ahead.

It looks as if it would turn out that way in Washington, and it is true there it is probably true elsewhere. Last school year Dr. Louis Jones tried to find out why children stayed away from school. His staff of about thirty teachers watched the attendance record of 445 children for 180 school days. These children were in the third grade in fifteen public schools. One of the institutions was an open window school. The total number of school days was 80,100. The total days absent of the 445 pupils was 4,890. This averaged 11 days per pupil, or nearly 5 per cent of the total possible school days.

This, in spite of the Saturdays, Sundays, and other holidays and the comparatively short school day. Jewish children in Russia before the world war went to school at daylight and stayed until after dark, and holidays came few and far between.

Whenever a pupil was absent one of these thirty interested teachers tried to find the reason. The causes were grouped under several heads: Colds, other illnesses, exposure to contagion, weather, truancy, religious holidays, and other causes. Over 78 per cent of all absences were due to colds, over 1,600 absences days, whereas truancy caused only 17 absences days, or 2-10 of 1 per cent.

Of the medical problems the common cold came first with 1,418 absences, one-fourth of all absences and two-fifths of the absences due to all diseases. Throat trouble, mostly sore throat, caused about two-fifths as many absences as did colds; grippe, about one-eighth as many; and bronchitis, one-twentieth. The respiratory infections combined caused 1,818 absences days.

An open window school is one in which the windows remain wide open during the winter months. The children in these open window schools wear outdoor wraps and they stay out a good deal. They have a rest period in which they get a lunch and are made to go to bed for a while. Children who are undernourished and have no rest are taught in these open window schools. In this period of observation the children in the open window rooms

KEEPING BASEMENT LOCKED.
Chicago, Oct. 15.—(Friend of the People.)—We live in a two and a half building and have our storeroom and wash tubs in the basement. The landlord lives downstairs and insists upon keeping the door locked from the inside, with his key turned in such a way that we cannot insert our key at all. If they are at home they unlock the door, but if not we just have to wait until they come home before we can get in.

Have they any right to bar us from the basement. We have told them about it, but it does no good. Hoping to see your answer in the paper soon, I am, P. P.

We would say that they have no right to do so, but it is not an advisable way to force the matter legally.

TO A LOVER.
Why have you bound me to earth with your desire? I was free once as the white wave-froth is free: My lovers were birds blown down the icy sea, And my companions cloud and turreted tree.

Why do you keep me in your passion's snare? Once I was quiet as the silver, cool, Unruffled surface of a twilight pool, That mirrors calmly all the things of air.

My joy was in the moon's curved virgin form, And in white fish-shapes, through clear waters seen. My passion was that heavy tanned green, And sulphur hush that goes before a storm.

There are cold uplands I cannot forget; Why do you hold me in your mended net?

BERTHA TEN ECKE JAMES.

LE ROI EST MORT.
I think he was the most honest man who ever lived. He never stooped to pretension, being exquisitely himself, an incorrigible pagan, a disenchanted skeptic and a grand gentleman, and all these things he was simply, naturally, with no faintest fanfare of conscious, and inescapably vulgar, audacity. With him the style was nearly, never more nearly, the man; he seemed to live as he wrote his books, toward the end, a tragic realization of reality struggling wearily with the knowledge that it had to be slashed somehow, anyhow. In his passing, a people no thousandth part of which had ever seen him or so much as knew the name with which he was born, passed and passed on with a feeling of instant and ghastly personal loss.

A glance toward a worn copy of Les Opinions de M. Jérôme Colquhoun, or the well-nigh perfect thing when translated into English received the singularly inept title, A Jernam's Tale, or (for those with a taste for bitter irony) a passing thought for that devastating comedy, Pengouin Island, where "everything moves in circles and ends as it began"; that is all. For Jacques Anatole Thibault, who was born when a forgotten man named Tyler was President of these States, a young and slim Victoria sat on the throne of England, and Louis Philippe was still King of the French, the dead in Paris, and only a shelf of thick, variously-bound volumes, signed by an euphonic pseudonym, lives on.

ON LOVEJOY LANE.
DOROTHEA: At last Lovejoy Lane is stepping into fame. I've been waiting for this for a long time. I, West African, do hereby affirm that I live on Lovejoy Avenue—right where the lamps are not only I call it Lovejoy Lane. Tall bushes grow in the middle of the street, and makes an alleyway for me to go to my front porch. It takes four street cars and a train to get there from any place, and yet, in spite of the dimness and seclusion, you can't get a man to take you home more than once. I have wondered and wondered.

That Wouldn't Stop 'Em.
Richard Henry: All morning the women, both young and old, prepared for the great event—that of seeing David of Windsor pass on his way to the University of Chicago. How thrilled they were—how anxious and how tremulous. Of course I wait too. Poor David! How tired he looked—how thin—how modest and unassuming! I wasn't thrilled at the sight of him—I have a first, second, and third mortgage on a price of my own—but how sorry I am for the poor heir to the throne of Great Britain. But I was amazed—yes, I was amazed—suddenly a middle aged woman—leave it to them—the younger haven't the nerve—grabbed the prince's arm, shrieking shrilly: "Here he is!—here he is!" Poor lad, his face turned scarlet, clear down to the edge of the pretty blue collar of his military uniform. The next time he goes on the north side I bet he takes the Grenadier Guards along.

MARTHA LOUISE.

LOVE'S MELODY.
(A Sonnet.)
Love is not always sung in passion's key. There is a minor strain that rings as true As all its fiery protestations do. It is a sweeter, softer melody, Tuned to a lower pitch than ecstasy; And yet, a potent chord with which to woo. Demanding passion, it only seeks to ease For favors passion claims as its just fee. And when the heart is with unshed tears, And burdens seem too heavy to be borne, At that still twilight hour when all is gray, This melody will charm away all fear, And soothe the soul so troubled and forlorn, And spirit all the weariness away.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full name and address. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

FROM FRANCIS X. BUSCH.
Chicago, Oct. 15.—I was considerably disappointed to read this morning in your editorial on pension investigation the implication or charge that I had in any way hampered this investigation.

The mayor's message to the city council which asked for this investigation was prompted by the report of the Citizens' association. The mayor's message suggested that a thorough investigation be had by the police committee, of which Ald. Byrne is chairman (not Ald. Albert, as stated in the editorial). As I understand it, Ald. Albert was made chairman of a subcommittee to arrange for counsel to conduct the investigation.

Ald. Albert called upon me and stated that the committee desired to select special counsel to conduct this investigation. I told him that, in the interests of economy, it had been my policy to confine assignments to my regular staff of assistants, one of whom is an expert on pension law, rather than incur the expense of special counsel. In this connection I want to inform you, because probably the fact has not been brought to your attention, that the amount spent for special counsel during the year 1923 was $281,918.44; during the year 1924 it was $101,954.99, a reduction of $179,963.45.

Ald. Albert stated that he did not believe the committee would prefer to have its own counsel, and I answered that if such was the desire of the committee I would name any one they would select. He then asked me to name a lawyer, and I named one before me. I named one before me as a witness before me in a case in which I was acting as master in chancery. I named one before me as a witness before me in a case in which I was acting as master in chancery.

RENT KNOWS, BUT WE DON'T.
Chicago, Oct. 9.—I long have wanted to deliver a message of some import to the weaker sex, but was not able to decide whether to send it to the "Doc" Evans, or to you. I can't wait any longer; my weakness is my guide; I give you the best, please break the news as gently as you are able.

Tell them (that is, the women) to apply their powder and rouge and have had their breakfast of bread and, as the results would be more coming than if the makeup is applied before.

STATUTE MORALITY.
Ottawa, Ill., Oct. 4.—The author of "Prohibitionist Sophistry" in the Tribune of Oct. 7 is a good deal like the old fashioned preacher who said God puts the devil in the world to develop Christian character among people.

It seems that "Sophistry" would have a saloon on every corner and a joint upstairs to develop strong character "self."

Mr. Patch writes that Kellogg's Bran "solved his problem." It has solved the problem of constipation—mild and chronic—for thousands of others. It has brought relief when all else has failed because Kellogg's Bran is ALL Bran. Nothing but ALL Bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read Mr. Patch's letter:

Dear Sirs: I have been a constant sufferer from constipation and have wondered what was the cause of it. I have tried about all the cereals I could think of, and finally tried Kellogg's Bran. This solved my problem. I feel 100 per cent better and I owe it to your Bran. Thanking you very kindly for this great relief, I am, Very respectfully, Chester C. Patch, 161 Main St., Greenwald, Mass.

For the permanent relief of constipation, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly.

WHO RULES ILLINOIS?

The People?—or the Anti-Saloon League?

TWO years ago the people of Illinois, by a majority of 553,132, voted in favor of beer and light wines for home consumption. This, together with many other manifestations of popular sentiment throughout the nation, shows clearly that the people of the United States desire a revision of the present tyrannical prohibition laws. Why have these laws not been modified?

The Anti-Saloon League has spent thirty-five millions of dollars in fastening drastic prohibition laws upon the American people. It spends millions every year to prevent the repeal or modification of these laws. In the State of Illinois alone, the expenditures of the League amounted to nearly $218,000.00 last year.

This command of large financial resources and an organization extending into every corner of the United States has enabled the League to secure the election of Members of Congress and the various legislatures who betray their liberal constituencies and carry out the wishes of the League in brazen defiance of the will of the people.

The Volstead Act was carried over the veto of President Wilson by the vote of Congressmen from liberal districts—districts opposed to the Act—who obeyed the orders of the Anti-Saloon League.

The majority of the State Senators and Representatives in Springfield, who voted for ratification of the eighteenth amendment and for the Search and Seizure Act, were elected to represent liberal districts. Although Chicago and Cook County are almost solidly wet, four state Senators and ten Representatives from this territory voted for the Search and Seizure Act. This Act, as well as the Enforcement Act of 1921, would have been beaten if these agents of the people had voted in accordance with the sentiments of their constituents.

When the people of Illinois, by the tremendous majority of 553,132, demanded the right to use beer and light wines in their homes, the legislature completely ignored their verdict, leaving the state laws, which the voters had condemned, in full force, nor did that body dare to certify the vote of the Illinois electorate to the Congress of the United States.

All of this is directly contrary to the consensus of opinion among honest men, that representatives of the people should vote in accordance with the expressed sentiments and wishes of their constituents, or resign their seats. And when a Congressman or other representative is so deficient in his sense of honor that he is unable to see the necessity of taking either one course or the other, the voters should defeat him for re-election.

The Anti-Saloon League has virtually seized the reins of government. Politicians of high and low degree carry out its orders, disregarding the will of the people. Majority government has ceased to function. It is time to restore it.

The Association Opposed to Prohibition, which initiated the referendum of 1922 on beer and light wines, is working to restore majority government and the freedom and the rights of the people. Its weapons are organization and publicity. The Association now has on the press a pamphlet giving the prohibition voting record of the members of Congress from Illinois, and the Members of the Illinois Legislature, in 1919, 1921 and 1923. Copies of this publication, unique in the history of American politics, will be sent to Members and distributed throughout the State.

The Association Opposed to Prohibition appeals to the freedom loving men and women of Illinois for moral and financial support and assistance. Help us to form branches and committees in your city, town and neighborhood. Become a member yourself, and get your neighbors to join. We need 10,000 workers, helpers, boosters. The task of replacing the tools of the League in Congress and the Legislature with real representatives of the people cannot be accomplished at one election. It may take some little time to win, but we will win. We need your help. The officers of the Association devote their time and efforts to the cause without compensation, and every dollar contributed will be used for organization and publicity.

Kindly fill out the blank application and send it to headquarters with your donation.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

United States, Secretary Hughes "can

Who Shapes U. S. Policy.

"He serves both Standard Oil and Morgan & Co. with constant fidelity," La Follette said. "From the beginning of the Harding-Coolidge administration our foreign policy has been shaped in the main in the interests of one or the other of these two affiliated groups."

Democratic chiefs were inclined to believe that the practical beneficiary of the La Follette effort will be John W. Davis. With Missouri in the doubtful column, a tieup between Davis and Coolidge at present, Democratic leaders maintain that in St. Louis, B-B is taking most of his votes out of the Republican ranks.

The reception of La Follette here was similar to that in Chicago Saturday. There was a parade and cheering crowds on the streets and a demonstrative audience paid admission to the Coliseum.

"How about the Lusitania?" shouted a badering voice from the gallery.

There were cries of "Throw him out."

"Be patient," said La Follette. "he'll get all the doctrine before I am through."

Traces "Imperialism."

Then he said imperialism started under President McKinley and expanded under Roosevelt and Taft. He dwelt on "the rape of Pan-America" under Roosevelt and "dollar diplomacy." Then he turned his attack on Woodrow Wilson and the present administration.

"The complete abandonment of the true American foreign policy came under Woodrow Wilson and has been continued and expanded under the Harding-Coolidge administration," he

Have been called on to declare war. The fatal error came in the failure of President Wilson to treat the belligerent nations of Europe alike—the failure to reject the unknown "war aims" of both Germany and Great Britain.

"I am convinced," continued La Follette, "that we abandoned our policy of neutrality through the influence of J. P. Morgan & Co., the fiscal agent to the British empire, who in the early spring of 1917 turned loose the press and agencies of propaganda to drive us into the war. At that time the credit of the allies with Morgan & Co. had been overdrawn $400,000,000, while contracts of $300,000,000 more were maturing, which could be paid only by bringing America into the war.

"That was the reason that Morgan—now by the grace of the British king, Sir John Pierpont Morgan—forced America into the world war."

VICTORS FIGHT OVER SHANGHAI; PRIZE TOO RICH

Hupei Troops Rebel and Seize Arsenal.

BY JOHN POWELL.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.)
SHANGHAI, Oct. 14.—The war for Shanghai, which apparently was off yesterday, is on again today with an announcement that two battalions of Hupei troops, formerly fighting with the Kiangsu forces, have revolted and joined Gen. Hsu Shu-seng, or Little Hsu, notorious Anfu leader. He has decided to take command of the disorganized Chinese troops in the Shanghai area. He intends to renew the fight against Gen. Chi Hsiang-yuan, the Kiangsu leader.

The Hupei troops slipped into Shanghai today and took possession of the arsenal recently vacated by Gen. Lu Yung-shiang when the latter fled to Japan. Measures for the protection of foreign lives and property in Shanghai are being redoubled.

PEASANTS GO TO DEATH

BY RODERICK NATHANSON.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.)
MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 14.—Japanese reports say a section of the city of Shanghai is still in the hands of the Peking forces, who fought desperately to hold their territory pending the arrival of their commander in chief, Gen. Wu Pei-fu. Gen. Wu is reported to have visited the front, greatly encouraging his soldiers. Even in Mukden the population regards him almost as a superman and unbeatable. The military headquarters here says Gen. Wu is placing thousands of peasants, in civilian dress and having no rifles, being armed only with hand grenades, ahead of the regular Peking or Chihli troops. These peasants, who were impressed into service, are being sacrificed in great numbers in order to exhaust the Mukden ammunition and to save the regular troops for the final battle.

A peasant deserter reaching the Mukden headquarters at Shanghai states that of 3,000 men impressed in the district around Jehan, 2,000 already have been killed.

Of the great number of Japanese men impressed into service in Mukden, 5,000 already have been sent to the front. These men were gathered in unexpecting by a police ruse. Early in the morning the police visited their homes, notifying them to call at police stations to receive wartime licenses. At first as they arrived they were placed in a big compound and ordered to don uniforms. They were marched to the railway stations and were on their way to the front before their families were aware of their fate.

Many wounded are arriving here from the Jehol front. The wounded tell weird stories of the fighting in their sectors, with strange tales of the strategy of Gen. Wu.

On one occasion the second and sixth Manchurian armies which were trying to encircle the enemy came face to face. Each thought the other was an enemy force and opened deadly fire.

On another occasion the second army fought throughout the night, firing volleys of machine gun bullets and shelling heavily an area from where was heard big gun and rifle fire. When morning came it was discovered that the big gun firing was produced by the explosion of giant firecrackers in the enemy camp, while the rifle fire was the crackling of strings of small crackers lighted by a few squads of Peking troops.

By this time the Mukden ammunition was exhausted and the Chihli forces returned in numbers, driving their foe before them.

Japan Warns Both Sides.

TOKIO, Oct. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—Warning that because Japan's own national security was involved, the Japanese government would not tolerate any damage to Japanese rights, lives and interests in Manchuria, was contained in notes forwarded by the foreign office today to headquarters of the warring Chinese factions in Peking and Mukden.

The notes, which were identical, reasserted Japan's policy of non-interference in Chinese domestic affairs, but let it be known that Nippon was prepared to protect its Manchurian interests.

Women's Minor Ills come from one cause

Chronic constipation is the plague of their lives, but thousands keep healthy with
Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

WOMEN are so accustomed to finding themselves constipated that they are apt to make matters worse by indifference. Unfortunately many seem to think that it is easier to give the appearance of health with cosmetics, or stifle a headache with an opiate, than to remove the real cause by taking a good laxative.

The pill habit, of course, is not to be recommended, but any woman can take such a mild laxative as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with assurance that the dose can gradually be decreased and that there will be no shock or weakening of the system.

As is generally known, Syrup Pepsin is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. A spoonful will clean out the impeded matter and make you feel well by morning.

You should take a dose when you feel the slightest symptom of constipation, such as biliousness, flatulency, lassitude, loss of appetite, restlessness, sleep, bad breath, dull eyes, salivary skin, and to stop fevers and colds. Many do not wait for these symptoms, but take Syrup Pepsin regularly once a week.

Mrs. Mary J. White, 122 Cedar Ave., Camden, N. J., and Mrs.

L. H. Edwards, Palisade, Colo.,

say that much of their excellent health can be ascribed to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The other members of the family also use it as, being free from opiates and narcotics, it is perfectly safe, even for infants.

More than ten million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold annually, the largest sale in the world. If you have been in the habit of using strong cathartic pills, salt waters or "candy cathartics," which contain a coal-tar drug called phenolphthalein, we especially urge you to try this milder method. You will have a better, freer passage and without strain or gripe. A bottle can be had at any drug store and the average cost is less than a cent a dose.

INVESTORS ALL OVER WORLD BUY UP GERMAN LOAN

U. S., Britain Oversubscribe Dawes Plan Issue

BY JOHN STEELE

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]
LONDON, Oct. 14.—General reports received here indicate that the $200,000,000 Dawes plan loan to Germany has gone over big everywhere, except Holland, where the issue was not favorably received. The leading bankers of the nation are meeting in Amsterdam tonight to mobilize all the country's resources to put the loan across. The British investing public quickly snapped up Great Britain's $60,000,000 share of the loan and investors were disappointed at not being able to buy any of the bonds. Leading bankers assert that they could easily have handled twice the amount of bonds issued them.

Great interest was shown here in dispatches stating that the American public had oversubscribed by five times the United States share of $10,000,000.

The high rate of interest and public belief in the soundness of Germany's industry were responsible for the speedy sale. Interest in German investments has been increasing right along in England, and the success attending the Dawes plan issue undoubtedly will bring a further demand for German stocks and bonds.

Leading bankers see bright trade prospects for next year as a result of the stability in the European financial markets which they may see the success of the German loan will ensure.

Schacht Thanks Morgan.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
BERLIN, Oct. 14.—While flying from London to Berlin on a government airplane, Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, sent a radio message to Nauen which was forwarded to J. P. Morgan, the American banker. Dr. Schacht thanked Mr. Morgan for the success of the German loan in the United States.

Discussing the voyage of the Zepplin ZR-3, Dr. Schacht said on landing: "The flight of the ZR-3 was a fortunate event in connection with the floating of the loan in the United States. I believe that the flight will increase the favorable feeling in America towards Germany and that it will be a visible token of German strength and work."

Americans Grab Bonds.

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special].—Not since 1917 and 1918, when the United States government sold its big Liberty and Victory loans for the purpose of raising money to defeat Germany and her allies in arms, has there been such a widespread public response to a new issue of government bonds in the American market that met the offering today of the $110,000,000 German government external loan of 1924 in 7 per cent bonds.

The new German loan was oversubscribed by about five times, according to a preliminary checkup made tonight. In excess of $500,000,000 of buying orders were on hand.

Can't Estimate Buyers.

Heads of the offering syndicate, comprised of more than 400 banks and about 400 bond dealers, said they could not attempt to estimate the total number of buyers. A large bank with offices and correspondents in many parts of the United States produced a report from a small western agency which was said to be fairly typical. This outlying office was a "two man" house, consisting of a manager and his assistant. At noon they reported total sales in that territory of $800,000, distributed among 400 buyers.

Allotment of the bonds will not be made before tomorrow. J. P. Morgan & Co. were busy all day and late into the night checking up reports with other participants.

As a result of the overwhelming sale of the bonds, a technical short interest, and, according to some reports, a genuine, although unwitting short interest, had already been built up. Many dealers contracted to sell more bonds than can be allotted to them. They will have to go into the open market to buy additional bonds to fill these orders.

The first sale was of $5,000 of the bonds at 94½ against the actual offering price of 95½. The extreme low price was 93½, still one-quarter of a point above the offering price, and the closing price was 95½, representing a gain of $17.50 in each $1,000 bond as compared with the offering price. Total sales on the stock exchange were $4,146,000, a figure that was regarded as unusually big.

KENTUCKY PLEA BY DAWES BASED ON CONSTITUTION

Tells Democrats They Have "Split" Ticket.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 14.—(Special).—Gen. Charles G. Dawes left here for Chicago tonight after closing a nine day campaign trip with four speeches in the blue grass region of Kentucky. He was accompanied through Democratic Kentucky by Edwin P. Morrow, former governor; Fred M. Sackett, candidate for United States senator, and Mrs. Christine Bradley South.

In Lexington a price of the station, but at the other point touched only a mild interest was displayed in his visit.

Gen. Dawes continued to hammer away at La Follette, although his only opponent in this state is John W. Davis.

Democratic Lines Divided.
Of the Democrats, Gen. Dawes said at Shelbyville:

"In this campaign the Democratic party with thousands of loyal, patriotic citizens—nobody can question the Democrats of Kentucky—but their party has nominated one radical and one conservative. They are between the lines in this fight. They can't recruit from either battle line on an issue of this sort—the integrity of constitutional guarantees which the third party has attacked. In this campaign there is no place for the Democrats. The issue is clear and distinct."

Estimating La Follette's Vote.
Kentucky is in a peculiar condition politically this year. It has not gone Republican since the days of McKinley, but the Democratic talk of a low tariff or no tariff has frightened many business men and tobacco growers. The Republican spellbinders are using the old "full dinner pail" high tariff argument for all it is worth.

The La Follette ticket is expected to draw from 15,000 to 20,000 in the state, where the Democratic margin of victory is growing smaller year after year.

The result depends chiefly upon the weather, as a rainy day means that the Republican mountaineers will stay at home because of bad roads, while the Democratic lowlanders will not be troubled by this factor.

SPAIN MOBILIZES LARGEST ARMY IN WORLD TODAY

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright, 1924, By The Chicago Tribune.)
MADRID, Oct. 14.—King Alfonso XIII. called the classes of 1920, 1921, and 1922 to the colors today by a royal decree.

This is practically a general mobilization and will give Spain the largest army in the world even if many exemptions are granted. Each class counts 300,000 men, and with 300,000 already under arms, Spain's nominal strength will be 1,300,000 men.

The king in his proclamation says the mobilization is designed "to reinforce the Spanish army in Morocco and Spain." Dictator Primo de Rivera's plan provided for the abolition of the old block house system, but no evacuation and no surrender to the Moors.

ANATOLE FRANCE LEAVES FORTUNE OF $300,000

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
PARIS, Oct. 14.—The will of Anatole France, the grand old man of French literature, who died last Sunday, was opened today by the authorities in the presence of his widow and grandson, Lucien Peidali.

The will provides that the 15 year old grandson shall be the sole heir, but it gives the widow a life interest in the estate. France's wealth was not given, but it is estimated to be upwards of $300,000.

19 years and every year more users

In December, 1905, when the first Chicago Solvay Coke made especially for home heating, was offered for sale, people had to be shown that it was a practical fuel. We had men whose only work was to go out and prove by actual use that Chicago Solvay Coke would heat a house, would not harm a heating plant, was easy to regulate and was more efficient than hard coal.

This is no longer necessary. Thousands of families in Chicago and suburbs now burn hundreds of thousands of tons of Chicago Solvay Coke every winter in stoves, boilers, hot air furnaces—whatever heating equipment they have. They all find that Chicago Solvay Coke is smokeless, sootless, more efficient and 20% cheaper than hard coal.

But we still keep our corps of Service Men. No longer need they persuade people they can burn Chicago Solvay Coke. Our Service Men are fuel experts who inspect heating plants, explain how to fire them most economically and recommend the proper size for the different types. This heating service costs you nothing. Get it today before you place your fuel order, which you should do at once. Phone now for a Service man.

STATE FAILS AS BUSINESS MAN IN AUSTRALIA

Socialist Enterprises Are a Fizzle.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.)
SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 14.—The present Nationalist government of New South Wales has been engaged during the last two years in clearing up the wreckage of numerous labor and Socialist state enterprises, inherited from previous labor administrations, which entailed great losses to the state, while at the same time disorganizing various private industries previously operated with success.

The government policy has been broad and nonpartisan because in unique instances where state enterprises progressed profitably the government has refrained from abolishing them, although the Nationalist program specifically opposes government operation in the field of private industries.

Ends Money Wasters.
The Nationalist administration confined itself only to a discontinuance of those state enterprises wasting money and to curtailing the scope of those found unduly interfering with outside business. In retaining several state enterprises the Nationalists did so on the ground that their existence was beneficial in coping with private trusts, which had fought successfully all other methods of regulation. State enterprises failing were abandoned, to quote the words of R. T. Ball, the state's minister of works, "with great benefit to the treasury and immense indirect benefit to the community."

Under this policy the government's first step was to remove the state from the bakery business. The state bakery, which supplied bread at a loss to private customers through local markets, went out of business on June 1, 1922. The state bakery plant is now operating successfully under a lease to a private enterprise which holds an option to purchase it, and in this purchase New South Wales hopes to retrieve some of the money it lost.

As with leaves, so with fishes. With the exit of the labor government two years ago conditions of insolvency were found in the state tawling industry, in which the Labor-Socialist party had taken a fling at the fish business. This experiment did not reduce the price of fish to the consumer, but it succeeded well in adding to the burdens of the taxpayer. The present government cleared away the wreckage, sold the trawlers, and most of the buildings, and New South Wales marked down a loss of almost $500,000 to experience.

The state's failures in bakeries and fisheries did not deter the Labor-Socialists from trying their luck with the state's money in the timber business. The timber department started operations as an industrial undertaking in July, 1912, and had to be discontinued ten years later at a loss of more than $1,000,000. In one year out of ten it returned a small profit. All the equipment has been sold.

And Also as Lumberman.

But the disaster in the timber business did not prove that success was not awaiting state enterprise in the timber business, so the Labor-Socialists hit the New South Wales treasury for another touch and went into the operation of saw mills. Two were purchased, one at Craven and one at Clou-center, with a state depot established at Newcastle for the sale of the output. The outlay of public funds amounted to $220,000. For a number of years war orders resulted in a profit, but at the close of the year 1922 the balance sheet showed a loss of approximately $35,000. When this loss was increased by another $35,000 during the first six months of the following year, the government decided to close down and the state since has been trying to dispose of the assets.

Girl's Sayer of Gary Given Death Penalty

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—Peter Vergolini of Gary was sentenced to death in the electric chair at Crown Point today by Judge Martin Smith for the murder of 8-year-old Anna Tomielech, also of Gary, on Sept. 2.

Vergolini lured the child away, mistreated her and then killed her, burying her body in a shallow grave.

Prepared with tomato sauce

If Carême (who wrote eloquently and lovingly about sauces) lived today

Just as the age of Carême, the Frenchman who was honored by kings for the sauces he created, was called the era of the cuisine classique, so this, speaking in terms of food flavors, is the age of the tomato.

The royal epicure alone enjoyed the skill of Carême

The work of Carême, saucier to dukes and princes, ended with the passing of the master and was probably little known outside of aristocratic circles.

Van Camp's creation relished by whole peoples
If the great French flavor genius could live today, how amazed he would be to learn that one single sauce by Van Camp (the mild and appetizing tomato sauce combined with Van Camp's pork and beans) not only lifted pork and beans to a new level of acceptance in the dietary, but awakened the appetites of whole peoples to an appreciation of the tomato flavor.

Proof of the remarkable response of the double appeal of the combined tomato and bean flavors is furnished by the fact that today almost half the country's enormous bean crop reaches the table as tomato sauce beans.

Ask for Van Camp's when you go to the store tomorrow for pork and beans. The noticeably better eating quality will repay you for your preference.

Small Quarters Blamed for the Gain in Divorce

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Investigation in Cincinnati, according to a recent periodical, has just revealed the fact that 80 per cent of the couples appearing before the Court of Domestic Relations of that city live in apartments or four room or less, 56 per cent in not more than two rooms and 18 per cent in furnished rooms.

The investigator goes on to say that the present housing crisis felt in all large cities has helped to swell the divorce courts and that lately many more couples are living with the old folks than ever before.

Of course, it would be ridiculous to say that a married couple cannot live as happily together in any spot however small, providing that they are congenial and much suited to each other. It has been done. Or that a man and wife cannot live with either's parents in peace and comfort. That also has been done.

We can all do as mention at least one or two cases in our immediate circle of friends where domestic felicity is thriving in small quarters, and even with in-laws, too.

But that is not speaking for the rank and file of married people; it hardly holds true of the average.

The first years especially are years of adjustment, no matter how gently in love the man and woman are. And there is nothing so conducive to a dissipating of small or large misunderstandings as a little breathing space. Hotel life and furnished room life means a perfect safe experiment when the couple has reached years of discretion and understanding. But it is perilous treading through the first years of marriage.

Space often means a curtailment of many small luxuries a young couple are unwilling to give up. Space, the lack of it, too, often means also a postponement of children.

"I don't see how we can possibly afford children. We haven't the room," is the complaint of a large number of young couples.

And right there is a second danger signal to the permanence of the marriage relation. There are always those who will disagree with this, but statistics gleaned in all big cities show an increasing proportion of childless couples. This fact facilitates divorce, and the growing opinion among authorities on all sides is that it is the cause of it.

SARAH D.: BLEACHING THE hair with peroxide is injurious, and in time causes it to look like dried straw. I would not continue the use of it if I were you—rather let your hair go back to its natural condition. This will take from a year to eighteen months. Wash the hair frequently.

STELLA: AT YOUR AGE, 20, YOU have attained your full height. I know of no way to increase height unless through gymnastic work—stretching exercises might add an inch or so.

Child Adoption League of New York that the average childless husband and wife no longer seemed enough for each other. More and more they were seeking excitement outside. They he says, does not hold so true in the smaller communities where public opinion, the neighbor's opinion, and the church's opinion, and the comment of the weekly press bear down more heavily on individual actions.

All things considered, the old-fashioned way of building for permanence through the home and through the children seems to be the safer way—the sure way, if the end in sight is peace and right living.

Henry Morgenthau recently told the

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Her Side of It.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going steady with a girl for five years. We are engaged and she is wearing my ring. She persists in doing everything possible to spite me and make me angry. She deceives me in every way, even to sneaking out with other fellows and lying about it. Still she has the nerve to tell me she loves me. I dislike bobbed hair, and do not approve of it unless it is thin or coming out. She had a lovely head of great, long, heavy hair and had promised never to have it bobbed. Now she has had it shingled. Bobbed. Two people can never get along on spite, deceit, and lies. Do you think that I am justified in quitting her and asking for my ring?"

HARRY: It seems to me you are looking for trouble, Harry. I can't agree with you about the bobbed hair, as I feel that the hair belongs to the young lady and it is hers to do with as she will. I do not commend her for lying or going out with other boys when she is engaged to you—but, Harry, she may feel discouraged, having waited five years. It's a lot to ask of any lady, now, isn't it?

Go On Hoping. "Dear Miss Blake: I am a young fellow of 18 and am anxious to meet

A FRIEND IN NEED

Young Mother Appeals. "I wonder if you can help me and clothing for my children? I have a boy 6 years old and two in boys of 10 months. The boy needs a suit and an overcoat and the babies need everything. I can sew and can make over anything, and am glad to call for what is offered."

Music Student—Attention. "I have a black leather music case in good condition to offer to some music student who is in need of one."

"Mrs. F. K. N." a girl of about the same age. We both take the same train in the morning. I have tried for the longest time to find some one to introduce me, but have not succeeded. As I have taken a great liking to this girl, I do not wish to lose her. Kindly advise me how I can gain her friendship.

"ANXIOUS." Anxious, hard though it may seem, will just have to keep on waiting until you find some one to present you to her. For Dame Grundy simply refuses to make any exceptions to this rule. You'll just have to exercise patience, son, and hope for the best.

MEN'S FASHIONS

BY A. T. GALICO.

Corduroy Robe for Cold Weather. NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Seasonal changes in men's attire are not limited to the exchanging of thin and porous underwear for the heavy woolen variety, or for darker colored suits to take the place of the light shades of summer. In the dressing gown field as well fall and winter bring on a different style. This change is not so much a matter of fashion as comfort. One is not a social outcast if one wears a bathrobe of light weight silk or cotton crepe in November. But one is apt to feel the necessity of something a little warmer and snugger.

Nor is one obliged to wear heavily brocaded or velvet dressing gowns such as one sees on the stage or in the movies. We saw some attractive robes of a humbler variety in a showroom not long ago. They were of corduroy, nothing new in itself, but were so attractive in the colorings that we could not help noticing them.

The style of the robe was the shawl collar variety, with three pockets, and with cord ends and collar of darker shades than the color in the body of the robes. There were five different colors used—gray, a soft plum color, dark blue, a dark rich green, and a rich purple. As is the case with many dressing gowns that are on the market, it is possible to find slippers to match the robes, both in material and color. We have seen such sets of bedroom garments in the fancy cloth material, and also the woolen.

TURN LIGHT ON BALL GAMBLING, WRITER ADVISES

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—New angles of the bribery fare-up preceding the world series are discussed by Joe V. Williams, veteran sports writer, in an article in the Evening Sun.

Ever since Heinie Sand, third baseman of the Philadelphia Nationals, told the story which led Commissioner Landis to black-list Jimmy O'Connell and Coach "Cory" Dolan of the Giants there have been rumors that gambling lurked in the background.

Sand's story was that O'Connell offered him $500 to throw one of the final games at the Polo grounds to the Giants.

Now read what Mr. Williams says: "Nick the Greek," is a Chicago gambler known all over the United States. He bets heavily on all kinds of sporting events. According to well posted men who frequent the New York race tracks, Nick backed the Washington Senators to whip the Giants in the late world's series and, as a result, he packed away a large sum of money, estimated by 'insiders' to have run all the way from $75,000 to $200,000.

Trims Gotham Bookies. "According to race track gossip, 'Nick the Greek' simply backed his judgment," the story goes on. "He wagered heavily, it is said, on the Senators to capture the American League pennant from the Yankees and Tigers and, in the process, he was plunged on the Washington team to carry off the interleague title. Inasmuch as the Senators' double triumph was scored honestly, 'Nick the Greek' evidently was a small fortune on the square."

"Most of 'Nick the Greek's' winnings were collected from New York men, including prominent old timers on the local turf. At the Aqueduct track last Friday commissions sent in by the Chicago speculator to be placed on the Washington team were snatched up eagerly. When the score stood 3 to 1 in the Giants' favor there was much rejoicing on the part of the 'Greek'."

"By the way, did 'Nick the Greek' bet on the National league race?" "Another big winner on the Senators' victory was Frank Keeney, the Brooklyn theatrical man. Mr. Keeney 'liked' the Washingtons, the money he became certain that they would clinch with the Giants in the interleague series. Mr. Keeney is said to have cleaned up between $25,000 and $50,000."

Here are several leads. "If the baseball authorities are anxious to get at the bottom of the betting activities of certain notorious individuals there are several leads. It would be interesting to discover the identity of the gambler who was barred from the Cubs ball park several years ago at the request of an official of the Giants."

"Why was the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league compelled to blacklist a certain hotel, where its players were living? Who was the conspicuous gambler among the guests? Ban Johnson, president of the American league, charges that as much as $100,000 was wagered on one of the Coast league games last summer."

"Turn on the light." "Who wagered this money? Was he the same gambler who was kept out of the Cubs' grounds, prior to the banishment of one of the Giants from organized baseball?" "Whatever proof of heavy gambling on ball games, in the major or minor leagues, that Mr. Johnson may have in his possession should be made public."

"The president of the American league has been looking into the baseball betting situation ever since the White Sox won the 1919, and it is believed to have obtained some startling information."

"Turn on the light!"

LANDIS COMING HOME TO REOPEN PROBE

New York, Oct. 14.—Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, who was scheduled to leave New York for Chicago late yesterday, delayed his get-away until today, setting off this afternoon after completing the distribution of the world series spoils. At Chicago he is expected to reopen his investigation of the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal and to strengthen his defenses against the attacks which President Dan B. Johnson of the American league and President Barney Dreyfus of the Pittsburgh Pirates threaten to launch against him.

His preparations probably will include the organization of couplet attacks. Johnson tried to crowd him into a corner during a joint meeting of the two major leagues at Chicago last winter, but the commissioner beat him to the punch. Dreyfus has been listed among Landis' strongest supporters heretofore, but took exception to Landis' refusal to call off the world series when the attempted bribery of Heinie Sand was uncovered and precipitated a feud which may result in additional interesting developments before the case is closed.

WISCONSIN DEER SEASON SOON AT HAND. While at Laona, Wis., for some grouse shooting, two things reminded us that the deer season will soon be here. First Doc Orits showed us a deer lick where the trails and signs were plentiful and then we jumped two does while banging away at a fast flying grouse. The Wisconsin deer season opens the morning of Nov. 13, and continues through Nov. 22. A hunter is allowed to shoot one buck only and a non-resident license costs $50. This license fee is pretty steep, but Michigan and Minnesota have established the same ante, so you "take your choice" on territory.

HOW TO STORE SWEET POTATOES IN CITY. Sweet potatoes can be bought on the market and stored providing they have been properly dried. It is freshly dug they can be easily cured. The state university recommends curing them in slatted crates in a well ventilated room where the temperature can be kept at about 85 to 90 degrees for two weeks. Then store them in the slatted crates in a room where the temperature can be kept at about 55 degrees during the winter. They are commonly stored in attics near a chimney or in furnace rooms in the basement where it is warm and dry. Sweet potatoes that are to be stored should be handled carefully to avoid bruising.

NEWS TO KEARNS.

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Jack Kearns declared today that the dispatch from Paris announcing that Jack Dempsey had accepted terms for a bout there next August against Paolino Basque was "news" to him. The champion's manager declared Dempsey was not now considering a trip abroad, that he knew nothing of any negotiations for a title bout in Paris, and that he was ignorant even of the existence of a boxer named Basque.

Net circulation

EVERY advertiser wants to buy "net" circulation; Every publisher wishes he could offer and deliver net circulation.

There's no such thing as actual "net" circulation; but the Elks Magazine comes pretty close to delivering it. The magazine is subscribed for, paid for, by 850,000 members of the Elks organization. They like it as a magazine, not simply as an "organ" of their fraternal order. In fact, it is a good magazine, with fraternal news a feature, rather than a fraternal magazine with other features added.

The members of the Elks organization are men of standing in their various communities; business and professional men; citizens active in the affairs of the community; owners and makers of homes; heads of families.

The Elks Magazine goes to these homes; the families like it; they find that it's made for them to like. Advertisers who want to talk to that sort of men and their families can do it, nearer net circulation, we think, in the Elks Magazine, than in any other.

HIGH PRICES END BORROWING NEED OF S. FARMERS

BY O. A. MATHER.

High grain prices and efficient transportation have relieved American farmers of the need for borrowing much money for crop moving purposes this autumn. The result is that credit now is about the cheapest thing the farmer can buy.

For example, a second issue of $1,000,000 of debentures of the federal intermediate credit bank was sold yesterday to a group of banks. The bonds, which mature in six months, were sold at a price to yield only 3 1/2 per cent, which is the lowest rate for any securities yet sold by either the credit or farm loan banks.

Little Help Needed.

The proceeds of these bonds will be used to assist farmers' cooperative marketing movements. But how little help is needed is shown by the statement that with this second issue of $1,000,000, about two-thirds of the apparent need for funds for marketing purposes during the current crop year has been met.

A group of Kansas banks purchased $100,000 of the debentures, which is regarded as significant from the fact that Kansas is ordinarily a high rate territory. Four years ago Kansas banks were strained to the limit, many of them paying the federal reserve bank as high as 12 per cent for their borrowings because of the excessive amount. Now credit is ample and cheap.

Peabody Co. to Offer Stock.

The Peabody Coal company, one of Chicago's oldest and largest, and the largest distributor of bituminous coal in the United States, yesterday announced a change from a "closed" to an "open" corporation. The company heretofore has been principally owned by a small group of Chicagoans. Now a considerable interest in the business will be sold to the investing public.

A block of $2,500,000 of Peabody Coal company 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock has been sold by some of the large stockholders and will be offered to the public today by Peabody, Houghteling & Co. The total preferred stock outstanding is $4,000,000. The Peabody Coal company was established forty years ago.

Off Taken from Storage.

An indication that correction of overproduction in crude oil is expected came in the action of the Prairie Oil and Gas company in abandoning its policy of storing oil runs and taking all oil now held in storage. Southern California reported a decline in output for last week.

The General Motors corporation reported deliveries of 48,188 cars and trucks last month by dealers to ultimate consumers. This compares with 44,871 in August and 60,111 in September last year. Sales for the nine months ended with September totaled $4,924, compared with $5,137 in the same period last year. While this is a decrease of about 7 1/2 per cent, it must be considered that last year broke all records in the automobile industry.

Officials of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad displayed faith in renewed prosperity in the northwest by voting to purchase $8,000,000 of new equipment, including 300 freight cars. President Finley said not a word of the purchase, but the purchase of $8,000,000 of new equipment, including 300 freight cars, is expected to exceed the $7,777,465, or $4.92 on the common stock, earned last year.

WALL STREET NOTES

Total sales on the New York stock exchange exceeded the million mark for the first time since Sept. 24. The total number of shares dealt in was 479, or 36 below the record high for all time.

U. S. Steel common opened unchanged at 197 and then slipped steadily to 194, closing just above that for a net loss of 3 1/2 on the day. The stock, which had been topped 190 1/2 in the early dealings, broke later to 194 1/2 and then rallied to 194 1/2, or 5 1/2 above the opening price. The stock closed at 194 1/2, or 3 1/2 above the opening price.

Oil shares showed the best resistance to selling pressure. Standard Oil of New Jersey and California, Texas company, and Standard Oil of Indiana, all showed resistance. The Texas company was the only one to close higher on the day, but the net gains were of a fractional nature. Special weakness cropped out, however, in the Pan-American, which closed at 15 1/2, or 1/2 below the opening price, and which closed about 3 points lower.

One of the surprises of the session was the vulnerability of the investment falls to selling pressure. Lackawanna dropped 5 1/2 points to 139 and lost 1/2 to nearly 4 points taking place in Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson, New York Central, Louisville and Nashville, and Reading.

COTTON MARKETS

December contracts sold off to 23.25, or 1/2 below the opening price, and closed at that figure. The general market closed steady, with a net decline of 1/2 to 1 1/2.

underweight, many going over with out receiving bids. The country seems possessed with a desire to force half fat stock to market. General average price yesterday was $10.75, against $11.15 Monday and $10.80 a week ago. Butcher competition absorbed the moderate run of 8,000 cattle at steady to strong prices. Armour paid $12.40 for 60 head of 1,125 lb steers, equaling high point of the month. Next highest was $12.35 for 1,045 lb average. South Dakota steers averaging 1,371 lb reached $12.00 and 1,033 lb average, $10.80. Quality graded fairly good for Tuesday, quite a number of $7000s in yearlings selling at $11.40-12.00. Old fashioned 1,513 lb steers sold at $8.40. Butcher stock, canning cows and calves ruled steady to strong. About 2,500 western range cattle went at strong prices. Monday's actual receipts of cattle totaled 24,754, the largest of the year.

Top Lambs $12.00.

Additional losses of 100,250 dropped top fat lambs to $11.90, lowest in nearly two weeks and 400 under previous week's demand. Receipts at 17,000 were below expectations and smallest for Tuesday in several months, being 10,000 smaller than arrivals the corresponding day a year ago. However, with eastern demand lacking and market practically in hands of barish local buyers, trading moved extremely slow at the decline. Lambs brought the day's top, with best western range stock at $12.50 and bulk of the supply of killing lambs at $12.00-12.40. Fat aged and yearling sheep were scarce at weak to unevenly lower prices. Full mouth breeding ewes brought $4.75 and range yearlings upwards to $12.00. Feeding lambs were strong at $12.50-13.00 mostly.

Seven markets received 61,000 cattle, 22,000 hogs, and 33,000 sheep; against 64,000 cattle, 23,000 hogs, and 37,000 sheep the previous Tuesday, and 72,000 cattle, 17,000 hogs, and 32,000 sheep a year ago. Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated 13,000 cattle, 18,000 hogs, and 19,000 sheep, against 19,907 cattle, 11,197 hogs, and 22,101 sheep the corresponding Wednesday a year ago.

Your Fortune

is governed not by what you save, but by what you do with what you save.

The building of an individual fortune does not depend solely upon the funds that are set aside as a surplus out of the individual's income. It depends in greater measure upon how effectively that surplus is used in producing additional wealth.

Two men, for example, may each invest $3,000 a year for 15 years, using much the same discretion and eliminating speculative ventures. Yet one will have $70,000 at the end of that period; the other only $55,000. Any investor will be interested in accounting for that impressive $15,000 difference.

The fortune that will be yours is measured largely by the character, resources and experience of your investment house; whether you have only a small surplus each year or many thousands of dollars to invest. Why?

Even though you may only be interested now in the possibilities of effective fortune building, you will find our book, "Successful Investing," a valuable guide for your journey on the road to riches. It charts the swiftest route to a secure fortune.

We have a copy ready to mail you as soon as you send us your address. Please ask for Booklet O-1.

JOHN SHERMAN, Secretary of the Treasury in the cabinet of President Hayes (1877-1881), began his long career of public service in 1855, as a member of Congress. Thereafter he continuously occupied positions of national influence, eventually becoming Secretary of State under President McKinley. He brought to his administration of the Treasury Department, a broad experience of men and affairs—an administration which was skillful indeed, and of great public value during the troubled period following our Civil War.

Select a bond house

before selecting a bond

BROAD FINANCIAL EXPERIENCE is a necessary background for successful investment. Finance is a profession quite as much as law or engineering. You would not think of getting along without a lawyer in a legal transaction, or without an engineer in building a bridge. That would be imprudent.

It is equally unwise to attempt so important a task as finding a profitable place for your money without utilizing the knowledge and advice of a competent bond house. There is safety in its counsel.

Competent Advice

It is a wise investor who keeps in close touch with his investment banker—gives him all needful facts about himself, his circumstances, income and holdings. That enables the banker to be of real service in helping the investor select securities which fit his situation and properly diversify his holdings. Through such counsel you can build up an investment structure of your holdings, so suitable and so diversified that it will stand unimpaired over a long period of time.

The Investor's Protection

The first step is to pick out a good bond house to deal with—one which is old and well known, whose operations are extensive, whose experience covers a wide field of conservative bond investment, whose record goes back for a long period of years.

In dealing with such a house, the investor not only protects himself, he greatly simplifies his investment problem. He has fewer doubts and perplexities. He can confidently exercise his own financial judgment because it is based upon facts and backed by competent opinion. Instead of a miscellaneous collection of securities, he builds up a solid investment structure for himself and his heirs.

"CHOOSING YOUR INVESTMENT HOUSE"—This booklet clearly presents the factors of experience and equipment by which you may judge the standards and service resources of a bond house. It is well worth the little time required to read it. Ask for booklet C-10.

"He Wished to Relieve His Wife of the Burden—But—"

RECENTLY we received a letter, part of which follows: "Your letter was delivered to me at the hour at which the man died for whom I was making this investigation. He died without having made any arrangement for the handling of his estate. He wished to relieve his wife of the burden of managing her own property, but a very sudden and unexpected illness prevented the carrying out of his plan."

Is your house in order? Have you arranged to relieve your wife of the burden of managing your property?

We shall be glad to confer at any time with you or your attorney as to how this best can be accomplished.

Industrial Stocks vs. Rails and Utilities

In which group do the greater opportunities for profits now exist? Each has had a decided advance in their fundamental situation the same, or would switches from one class of stocks to another be the wisest policy now?

Important changes in basic conditions have caused us to prepare a special bulletin on this subject, containing definite recommendations to investors. Free on request.
